36. Trade Confirmations and Account Statements

36.1 Electronic Settlement Confirmations

Following the execution of a Transaction on your Account, we will promptly provide a trade confirmation ("Settlement/Trade Confirmation") on our Online Trading Facility. Although failure to do so won't invalidate the transaction, confirmations will usually be available immediately after Transaction execution. Confirmations are considered conclusive and binding unless immediately objected to upon receipt, with written confirmation (including e-mail) no later than the next Business Day following the posting of the Settlement/Trade Confirmation.

36.2 Account Information Updates

Your Account activity details will be posted on our Online Trading Facility, including daily, monthly, and individual Transaction reports. 37.4 Legal Recognition

Electronic communications are deemed legally satisfactory for signed and written communication requirements, as permitted by Applicable Laws, Rules, and/or Regulations.

38. Recording of Communications

38.1 Recording and Maintenance

We may record and maintain records of your communications, including telephone conversations, Electronic Messaging, e-mails, internet conversations (chat), and meetings.

38.2 Ownership and Use

Such recordings remain our property and are conclusive evidence of their content. Copies of transcripts may be shared with courts, regulatory bodies, or government authorities.

39. Rollover and Offset Instructions

39.1 Rollover Process

Rollover extends the settlement date of open positions in margin trading. Spot trades are settled within two business days in the forex market, but in margin trading, positions are closed daily and reopened the next trading day, extending settlement by one day.

39.2 Rollover Fees

We charge Rollover Fees for holding positions open overnight, based on the interbank rate with a mark-up. Rollover takes place at 22:00 GMT. Credit or debit for positions open at this time will appear in your account within an hour.

39.3 Collection of Rollover Fees

We aim to deduct Rollover Fees from your Account balance. If unable to do so, we may close positions to cover the fees.

39.4 Offset Authority

In the absence of instructions, we can offset or deliver positions on your behalf as deemed reasonable.

40. Corporate Events and Adjustments

40.1 Impact of Corporate Events

In instances where an Instrument is impacted by a corporate event, as detailed in sub-clause 41.2, the Company will execute necessary actions to adapt your trading account to accommodate the event's impact on your position. This adjustment aims to retain the economic equivalence of your Transaction and/or Contract with the Company. The actions taken by the Company include:

- (a) Modifying the size, value, or quantity of Orders as deemed suitable, to uphold the economic equivalence of your open positions;
 - (b) Striving to inform you of upcoming events and corresponding actions through durable mediums, including the Company's website;
 - (c) Ensuring that if you have a Pending Order, Stop Loss, and/or Take Profit associated with your Orders, the equivalent rights and obligations of your Transaction and/or Contract before the corporate event will be maintained;
 - (d) In cases where a corporate event like a reverse stock split leads to ownership below our system's minimum, positions will be rounded down to the nearest allowable trade size. Any residual value from the position adjustment will be reflected as a cash adjustment in your trading account.
- If you own the underlying Instrument, distinct actions may be pursued by the Company, yet the aim is to maintain economic equivalence as closely as possible.

40.2 Scope of Corporate Events

40.2.1 Events Encompassed

Corporate events, as per sub-clause 41.1, encompass the following:

- (a) Issuer-initiated distribution of additional shares, other share capital, warrants, or dividend-granting rights leading to a dilutive market value effect;
- (b) Stock splits and reverse stock splits that alter the share ownership and price. A split involves multiplying existing shares by a ratio (e.g., 1:2, signifying each share turns into two). While the shareholders' shares double, maintaining the same market capitalization, the stock price halves, ensuring economic equivalence. Note that your positions might consolidate into a single entry on the terminal, capturing the corporate action's effect on all positions;
- (c) Dividends; If an underlying Instrument bestows dividends (equity index or stock), a cash adjustment equivalent to the dividend paid to clients with open positions on the Instrument will be applied;
- (d) Delisting or voiding of a tradable Instrument, leading to position closure. It should be noted that the Company reserves the right to delist financial instruments if the issuer files for bankruptcy, indicating potential insolvency;
- (e) Takeovers or mergers (including spinoffs) that might result in cash adjustments similar to dividends;
- (f) Any other events similar in nature to the above, influencing the Instrument's market value.

Please don't hesitate to reach out if you need further clarification or assistance.

Our share trading service may not be suitable for all individuals. A comprehensive outline of the risks inherent to our share trading service is presented in the Risk Disclosure for Financial Instruments. We execute your Instructions to Deal as principal, representing you as a Client. You are accountable for fulfilling obligations under each Instruction to Deal and Transaction. The decision to engage in or abstain from a Transaction solely rests with you.

41.6 Absence of Advisory Role

We do not offer investment, financial, legal, regulatory, or other advice. It's advisable to seek independent counsel for Transactions. Your judgment governs entering, refraining from entering, instructing to Deal, or refraining from Transaction. We won't provide financial advice on Instruments, Instructions to Deal, or Transactions.

41.7 Instruction Aggregation

We may combine Instructions to Deal from multiple clients, if beneficial for overall client interests. However, aggregation might lead to less favorable prices post-execution. You acknowledge that we're not liable for such outcomes.

41.8 Product Details and Market Impact

Instrument details during Buy or Sell transactions align with our website's information, subject to updates.

41.9 Market Condition Impact

Market conditions can affect execution time for Limit Orders, Stop Orders, and Market Orders. Execution isn't guaranteed even if a limit or stop price is reached. We bear no liability for loss due to execution delay caused by market conditions, or execution above/below requested price.

We do not provide tax advice. Seek independent advice to understand and tax implications of Transactions and Charges under changing tax legislation.

49.4 Ongoing Tax Obligations

You're liable for tax payments and disclosures to relevant authorities regarding your dealings with us. We comply with privacy policies while providing required tax information.

Chapter F: Copy Trading: Exploring Investment Possibilities

51: Understanding the Copy Trading Platform

51.1 The Power of Copy Trading

Our cutting-edge copy trading platform introduces a dynamic environment for engaging, tracking, and mirroring fellow traders and strategies. It encompasses a range of "copy trading features" that encompass account insights, trading histories, risk profiles, and pertinent Manager and strategy particulars.

51.2 The Art of Copy Trading

Copy trading enables traders, referred to as the "Investor," to replicate trades made by other traders, termed the "Manager." Upon electing to follow a specific strategy, the Investor authorizes us to automatically execute Manager-initiated trades within the Investor Account, devoid of prior consultation or approval.

52: Role of the Investor

52.1 Investor's Responsibility

By selecting to mirror a Manager's strategy, the Investor commits to:

- Empower the Manager to execute actions aligned with the chosen strategy on their behalf.

- b) Sanction the Company to execute requisite actions for strategy subscription facilitation, including trade openings, closings, and suspension. The Company will exercise due diligence but is exempt from liability for system-related financial losses. Details are outlined in Sections 17, 19, and 20.
- c) Follow the chosen strategy proportionate to the allocated Investment Amount. Adjustments ensure equity and leverage harmony with the Manager's approach.
- d) Allow the Company to transfer Manager Commissions from the Investor Account to the designated Manager Account post-trade closure.

52.2 Understanding Leverage and Pricing

The Investor acknowledges the leverage constraints set by the Company, influencing Manager Commissions and Investor trades. Leverage thresholds may vary and can be referenced on our website.

52.3 Financial Allocation and Subscriptions

Allocating the minimum investment amount set by the Manager is a prerequisite for subscribing to a strategy. This determines the volume ratio for mirroring Manager Trades. Automatic order execution, sans Investor approval, governs the subscription duration. Trades below the minimum threshold volume will not be executed.

52.4 Managing Price Variations

Variations in pricing are a possibility between the selection of a strategy and the commencement of its replication.

52.5 Precise Copying of Open Trades

When copying open trades, we execute positions at the best available prices upon copying, accounting for market closures.

52.6 Copying New Trades

For new trade copying, prompt position execution is aimed for. All associated actions, including stopping losses, taking profits, and closures, are mirrored in the Investor Account.

52.7 Manager Account Closure

The Company retains the discretion to close Manager Positions, leading to the automatic exit of Investor subscriptions.

52.8 Independent Strategy Assessment

Investors acknowledge that Manager Strategy descriptions, inclusive of performance fees, minimum investment, and strategy types, are not Company-approved. Managers possess autonomy in portfolio selection, sometimes deviating from strategy descriptions.

52.9 Risk Acknowledgment

Investors accept that losses in the Investor Account aren't the Company's responsibility, and losses may surpass the allocated Investment Amount and Manager losses.

53: Responsibilities of the Manager

53.1 Manager Strategy Scrutiny

The Company reserves the right to reject or block strategies that violate Agreement provisions, laws, and ethical standards, or infringe third-party rights.

53.2 Manager Position Closure

The Company retains the discretion to close Manager Positions.

53.3 Commission Calculation and Payment

Manager commissions are computed and transferred post-trade closure, factoring in High Watermark calculations.

54: Service Limitations in Copy Trading

54.1 Non-Provision of Financial Advice

Our copy trading platform does not provide investment recommendations, advice, or tax guidance. Information shared is solely for informational purposes.

55: Risks and Realities of Copy Trading

55.1 Evaluating Financial Position

Investors must assess their financial situation and commitments before subscribing to a strategy. Copy trading entails speculation, with losses potentially exceeding the copied amount due to factors like trade volumes and automated execution.

55.2 Past Performance Disclaimers

Past performance, risk scores, and portfolio data aren't definitive indicators of future outcomes. The Company doesn't guarantee similar profits or losses to those shown in a Manager's strategy.

55.3 Functionality Insights

Our copy trading platform features dynamic functionalities subject to modification without prior notice.

56. Liability: Clarifying Company Responsibility

56.1 Company Accountability within Legal Boundaries

By prevailing Applicable Laws and Regulations, it's essential to understand that the Company cannot be held responsible for losses stemming from:

- a) Implementation of written instructions provided by the Investor, as executed by the Company.
- b) Choices and measures taken by a Manager, whom an Investor has elected to replicate.

Chapter G: Margin Deposits, Collateral, and Payments

57. Understanding Margin and Collateral

57.1 Definition of Margin and its Significance

Margin constitutes the cash amount you are obliged to deposit with us before engaging in Transactions or Contracts. It's pivotal to ensure that your account maintains sufficient Margin to cover the Margin Requirement for any open positions resulting from your Transactions or Contracts. In cases where your Margin falls short of the required amount for a proposed open position, your Transaction or Contract might be declined. The need to maintain the Margin Requirement persists until the eventual closure of an open position. It's important to note that the Margin Requirement can change an open position is closed.

57.2 Contingent Liability: Considerations for Contract for Differences

An essential aspect to be aware of is the potential contingent liability associated with certain types of Transactions, such as Contracts for Differences (CFDs). Depending on the nature of the Transaction, you might need to make additional payments if a Transaction fails to reach completion or when positions are closed out early. This entails the responsibility of making further variable payments, termed Margin, instead of the immediate payment of the complete purchase (or sale) price. The movement in the Market Price of your investment can significantly influence the amount of Margin you are required to furnish.

57.3 Margin Call and Security Requirements

You are obligated to fulfill the following upon our demand: (a) provide us with Security against your obligations; (b) ensure that a positive balance is maintained in your Accounts; and (c) submit deposits, initial Margin, or variation Margin to cover your present, future, and potential liabilities to us. Our Online Trading Facility is equipped with an automated risk monitoring system and margin Call and Stop-out features. Through this system, we can apply Margin Calls and Stop-outs at prevailing levels as displayed on our Online Trading Facility. This includes instances of initial, maintenance, or close-out Margin Calls.

57.4 Dynamic Margin Requirements

Our Margin requirements can be subject to adjustments at our discretion. Prompt compliance with any Margin payment requirements is essential. Please note that a single Margin call doesn't preclude the possibility of additional calls. Additionally, different financial instruments might have varying Margin requirements. For detailed information on applicable Margin requirements for specific financial instruments, please refer to our website.

57.5 Margin Adjustments During Market Disruption

Under specific circumstances, such as market closures or significant news announcements, we reserve the right to temporarily impose higher margin requirements than usual. These instances include times leading up to Friday market closures, major news announcements, and anticipated abnormal Market conditions or disruptions. It's important to acknowledge that such temporary adjustments may influence existing open Orders.

57.6 Cash and Non-Cash Margin

Margin must be provided in cash or other acceptable assets, such as collateral. The currency of your cash Margin will align with the currency of the relevant underlying Transaction or as determined by us. Please note that the cash Margin transferred to us represents a transfer of title, and you won't retain any interest in it. The cash Margin received by us will be recorded as a cash repayment obligation on our part.

57.7 Acceptance of Non-Cash Collateral

In instances where non-cash Collateral is accepted, it must meet our criteria. We determine the value and proportion of non-cash collateral to be considered for Margin purposes. The value of Collateral can be subject to change, and you should be aware of this dynamic nature. Such valuation affects your obligations and is conducted within the confines of Applicable Laws, Rules, and/or Regulations.

57.8 Consequences of Failing to Meet Margin Requirements

You are responsible for maintaining communication regarding Margin arrangements. If you fail to provide Margin or required deposits within the stipulated time, we reserve the right to close out any open Transactions or Contracts without prior notice. The proceeds will be allocated towards your outstanding obligations. Please be aware that such failure might be deemed an Event of Default.

57.9 Currency Conversion and Effects

Calls for Margin will be made in the currency of the Transaction or your Account. Funds may be converted

Trade the world's at exchange rates determined by us. We endeavor to minimize losses arising from such conversions, though no liability lies with us for any resulting loss.

57.10 Right to Reject Margin

We retain the right to return any deposited Assets, including Margin, Collateral, or deposits, at any time without the need for justification or explanation.

57.11 Safeguarding against Negative Balances

Under our Negative Balance Protection policy, your aggregate liability for CFDs within your trading Account is restricted to the funds present in the Account. This policy aims to prevent your losses from exceeding the funds in your trading account due to net profits from closed trades. However, certain activities, such as arbitrage, abuse, or internal hedging, might disqualify you from this protection. In such cases, we may adjust the policy accordingly.

58. Margin Call and Stop-Out Levels

58.1 Automated Monitoring for Risk Management

Our Online Trading Facility employs automated risk monitoring, Margin Call, and Stop-out features to oversee the utilization of your collateral. These tools align with our Margin and cash funding requirements for the Transactions or Contracts executed through our platform.

58.2 Margin Call Policy and Equity Protection

Our Margin Call Policy ensures that your maximum risk is limited to your Account equity. A Margin Call occurs when your Account equity falls to 50% of the required Margin Level for open positions. This alerts you that your equity is insufficient to support your positions. During such times, new positions cannot be opened, and you may choose to deposit additional funds to maintain existing positions. Your Margin Level's fluctuations, influenced by winning and losing positions, will impact the proximity to the Margin Call Level.

58.3 Personal Responsibility for Monitoring

Clients are responsible for actively monitoring their Account activity, including tracking open positions reaching the Margin Call Level.

58.4 Activation of Stop-Out Level

The Stop-Out Level is a threshold where our Online Trading Facility will automatically close trading positions, starting with the least profitable, to prevent further account losses. This activation occurs when equity is 20% of the Margin Level required to maintain open positions. Even hedged positions are subject to these requirements if account equity falls into negative territory.

58.5 Impact on Stop and Limit Orders

In scenarios where a Stop or Limit Order coincides with the price that triggers a Stop-out, the Stop-out will be executed, and any pending Orders tied to that trade will be canceled.

58.6 Priority of Margin Call and Stop-Out

In instances where both a Margin Call or Stop-Out and other order types are triggered simultaneously, the Margin Call or Stop-Out will take precedence.

59. Security and Asset Protection

59.1 Safeguarding Your Assets

59.1.1 Security Interest and Lien

All Assets held on your behalf or in our possession, including those jointly owned or serving as a guarantee, are maintained as security for your commitments to us. This includes a general lien and the right of set-off for any liabilities you owe us, regardless of the number of accounts you hold. This security encompasses your Account credit balances, registered securities, and the value of your ongoing positions with us. We hold the discretion to transfer your Assets between your accounts, combine or set off between accounts, and convert currency without prior notice.

59.1.2 Withdrawal or Substitution

Your Assets held under our security interest cannot be withdrawn or substituted without our explicit written consent.

59.2 Granting Fixed Security Interest

As an ongoing commitment to securing your obligations under these Terms and Conditions, you grant us a fixed security interest in all your current and future Assets provided to us or held by us under these Terms and Conditions. This security interest extends to assets held in your Account(s). We are authorized to realize and apply these Assets to satisfy any part of your outstanding obligations to us without prior notice.

59.3 Ensuring Comprehensive Protection

You agree to facilitate the perfection of our security interest by executing the necessary documents and steps. This may involve registering us as owners of Margin, securing the Secured Obligations, and meeting Market requirements.

59.4 Asset Substitution

Withdrawal or substitution of Assets under our security interest necessitates our prior written consent.

59.5 Set-off in Default Scenarios

In cases of default or agreement termination, we are entitled to set off the cash Margin we owe you against your liabilities to us. This set-off considers the "Netting" clause of this Agreement.

59.6 Utilization and Pledging of Collateral

59.6.1 Assurance of Collateral

You warrant that Collateral transferred to us under these Terms and Conditions is free from encumbrances except for the lien established by these Terms. You grant us the right to pledge, re-pledge, hypothecate, invest, or loan any Collateral we hold for you, either separately or with other clients' property, to satisfy obligations to us or third parties.

59.6.2 Negative Pledge

You agree not to establish any Security interest over the Margin transferred to us, except for routine clearing system liens.

59.7 Granting of Charge

59.7.1 Authorized Charge

In instances where the Margin provided constitutes "financial collateral," and this Agreement is a "security financial collateral arrangement," we may grant a Security interest over the Margin to cover obligations to an intermediate broker or Market.

59.7.2 Appropriation of Collateral

You agree that, in the context of "financial collateral," we have the right to appropriate part or all of such Collateral to satisfy Secured Obligations. The value of appropriated "financial collateral" includes Margin and accrued but un-posted interest at the time of appropriation.

59.8 Power of Sale

In case of an Event of Default, we possess the authority to sell Margin under these Terms and Conditions. Proceeds from the sale will cover costs and the Secured Obligations. The method and price of sale will be determined at our discretion.

59.9 General Lien

We hold a general lien over all Assets and property held on your behalf, our Associates, or our nominees until your Secured Obligations are satisfied. This lien encompasses Account credit balances, registered securities, and the value of your open positions. We reserve the right to transfer, set-off, and convert Assets between accounts without notice. We can also set off amounts owed between us at our discretion.

Chapter H: Pricing and Fees

60. Understanding Commissions, Fees, and Charges

60.1 Payment of Commissions and Charges

We strive to process withdrawal requests within one (1) Business Day, provided specific conditions are met. These conditions include: (a) inclusion of all necessary withdrawal request information; (b) using a payment method in your name; (c) provision of full identification documentation; and (d) maintaining the minimum required Margin Level if there are open positions in the Account, particularly as specified in sub-clause 58.2 during Market Disruptions to ensure Margin Level compliance.

If you engage in arbitrage or abuse for financial gain, we can exercise this Agreement's terms without prior notice. This may involve combining accounts, canceling Orders, and more.

Chapter J: General Provisions

79. Market Making

79.1 Role as Market Maker

In certain markets, such as foreign exchange, OTC foreign exchange options, and CFD Contracts, it's important to note that we might function as a 'Market Maker.' This entails us taking on the risk of holding Supported Securities to facilitate trading. We quote bid and ask prices for Supported Securities on our Online Trading Facility and fulfill Orders from our inventory or seek Offsetting Orders.

79.2 Swift Pricing

To provide quick Price Quotes similar to speculative trading, we sometimes rely on available prices that may later prove inaccurate due to specific market circumstances. If acting in good faith, we might cancel a Transaction or Contract due to such circumstances.

79.3 Position Offset and Profit

After executing a position with you, we may offset it with another client's position or our proprietary position, aiming for trading profits. This could result in different prices from the Price Quotes provided to you, leading to trading profits or losses.

79.4 Conflicting Positions

In markets where we act as Market Maker, we might hold positions opposing yours or other clients', creating potential conflicts of interest.

79.5 No Price Quoting Obligation

As Market Maker, we aren't obligated to quote prices with specific maximum spreads to you or other clients.

79.6 Spread as Remuneration

Price Quotes include a spread as our remuneration, which can't be individually calculated for all Transactions. The spread isn't revealed in Settlement/Trade Confirmations.

79.7 Influence on Trading Results

Commissions, interest charges, and other fees within spreads affect your trading results and performance.

79.8 Impact on Margin Deposit

While dealing costs are typically moderate compared to traded instrument value, they can be significant relative to Margin deposit. This could deplete your Margin due to trading losses and costs.

79.9 Active Trading Consideration

Active traders with numerous Transactions should consider both visible and invisible costs, which might exceed Margin value.

79.10 Implication of Market Making

Market Making may result in implied costs from profits made, affecting your Account and not always quantifiable for you.

79.11 Performance Details

We're not obligated to disclose our Market Maker performance or income details.

79.12 OTC Products

For OTC products like CFD Contracts, the implied costs related to Market Maker performance apply.

80. Conflicts of Interest80.1 Notable Interest

When arranging Transactions and Contracts, we might have material interests, relationships, or arrangements related to them. We aim to resolve such conflicts in your best interest.

80.2 Specific Situations

Acknowledging potential conflicts, we might assign Order execution to third parties, handle opposing client Orders simultaneously, establish trading relationships with other issuers of Financial Instruments, and compensate Associates and clients.

80.3 Conflict Policy

Full details of our Conflicts of Interest Policy are available on our Online Trading Facility, though it's not part of these Terms and Conditions.

80.4 Acknowledgment of Business

By accepting these Terms and Conditions, you recognize that we may conduct such business without prior reference to specific potential Conflicts of Interest. 81. Special Provisions for Managed Accounts, Introduced Accounts, or Third Party Vendors.

81. Special Provisions for Managed Accounts, Introduced Accounts, or Third Party Vendors81.1 Account Management and Introduction

If your Account is managed by a trading advisor or introduced to us by a third party, it's essential to recognize that we're solely responsible for being the counterparty in Transactions and/or Contracts within your Account. We don't bear responsibility for actions, representations, or statements of such individuals or entities related to your Account or Transactions.

It's important to acknowledge that:

(a) trading advisors and third-party introducers act independently; (b) unless otherwise stated in writing, they aren't our affiliates, employees, or agents; (c) they can't make representations about us or our services unless authorized in writing by us; (d) we're not liable for agreements between you and them; (e) engaging with them might lead to extra costs, as we may need to pay commission fees to them.

81.2 Waiver and Indemnification

By accepting these provisions, you agree to waive any claims against us and hold us harmless for actions or omissions of third-party introducers or their associates.

82. Acknowledgements82.1 Understanding Speculative Nature

You acknowledge that trading leveraged and non-leveraged Transactions and/or Contracts: (a) involves speculation; (b) carries significant risk; (c) is suitable only for those who can assume substantial losses exceeding their Margin deposit.

82.2 Implications of Leverage

Further understanding includes (a) small initial Margin relative to trade value, leading to leverage; (b) small price changes in Underlying Security can result in major losses; (c) profit or loss from value fluctuations is solely your responsibility; (d) we won't provide advice; (e) we don't continuously monitor Transactions and/or Contracts; (f) profit guarantees are impossible; (g) no such guarantees were given by us or our associates.

82.3 Consideration for Risky Trading

Given the risks, you should engage in such transactions only with a full understanding of the trading nature and your risk exposure. Trading leveraged Securities isn't suitable for many individuals, requiring careful consideration based on experience, objectives, financial resources, and circumstances.

82.4 Over-the-Counter (OTC) Trading

Trading Foreign Currency Contracts privately with us, as Principal, involves 'back-to-back' transactions. It's not cleared by a central clearing organization. Any Transaction with us is our obligation, without regulatory and financial protections from exchange-traded contracts.

82.5 Leverage Effects

Transactions in leveraged Securities are highly volatile. Small Market movements can significantly impact deposited funds, both positively and negatively. A substantial loss of initial Margin and added funds might occur if the market moves against your position.

82.6 Electronic Trading Risks

Electronic trading systems are vulnerable to temporary disruptions. Recovery from losses might be limited by system provider rules. Execution issues, including hardware, software, and internet-related problems, may occur when trading online.

82.7 Commissions and Charges Impact

A clear understanding of all commissions, fees, mark-ups, and other charges affecting net profit or losses is crucial before trading.

82.8 Risk-reducing Strategies

Certain Orders intended to limit risk might not be effective due to Market conditions.

82.9 Trading Suspension and Risk

Market conditions and rules can hinder Transactions, liquidation, or offsetting positions, increasing risk.

82.10 Protection of Deposited Funds

Protections for deposited money or property may vary in insolvency or bankruptcy events, affecting fund recovery.

82.11 Currency Fluctuations Impact

Currency rate fluctuations affect profit or loss in leveraged Transactions when converting currencies.

82.12 Cross-border Trading Risk

Trading in other jurisdictions exposes you to additional risks and varying investor protection.

82.13 Quoting and Execution Errors

We're not liable for errors resulting from quoting, execution, and system issues, but we correct or adjust Accounts as needed.

82.14 Off-Exchange Transactions Risks

Off-exchange Transactions in the unregulated Over-the-Counter (OTC) Market involve higher risks due to a lack of regulations, valuation rules, and protections.

82.4 Additional Important Points to Note

In addition to the previously mentioned aspects, it is crucial to fully comprehend the following points:

a. Closure of Open Positions

We retain the authority to close parts or all of your open positions to facilitate fees or amount charges owed by you. Despite this, you remain responsible for promptly settling such fees, even if your Margin deposit is fully lost.

b. Unavailability of Underlying Instruments

If an Underlying Instrument becomes unavailable for trading (due to insolvency, management decisions, etc.), we reserve the right to close open/pending positions at the last quoted price obtained from our liquidity providers.

c. No Guarantee on Orders

Placing 'Stops' doesn't ensure the trade will be filled at the Order price. Entry Stops and Stops will be filled at the first available market price upon activation, which may differ from the requested price.

d. Liquidity Provider Limitations

If liquidity providers can't provide liquidity, Orders may experience execution delays or might not be playable. Order size could also influence execution speed. Avoid entering the same Order multiple times to prevent unwanted positions.

e. System Errors

While using our Online Trading Facility, system errors may arise from hardware or software failures. Such errors could affect Order execution and account balance accuracy. We reserve the right to rectify these issues on the respective Account.

f. No Guaranteed Profit

No system guarantees lucrative outcomes in leveraged Financial Instruments trading, and the results of Transactions and/or Contracts are inherently uncertain.

g. Market Conditions Impact

Although foreign currency, commodities, and indices markets are relatively liquid, Market conditions might hinder Order execution or limit execution of 'limit' Orders at stipulated prices. This increases the risk of losses occurring in a short time.

h. Non-obligatory Additional Guarantee Deposit

While additional guarantee deposits aren't obligatory, we can close outstanding balances without consent under such circumstances.

i. Abnormal Market Conditions

During abnormal Market conditions, CFDs might rapidly fluctuate due to unforeseeable events beyond our control, affecting your trading ability.

j. Handling Zero Prices

If the price of a financial instrument reaches zero, our Online Trading Platform will automatically close open positions at the current market price.

k. Indicative vs. Dealable Quotes

Indicative Quotes on charts indicate Market direction, but due to decentralized derivative products Markets, slight price differences might exist among Market Makers.

l. Detailed Understanding Required

Risk information here doesn't cover all inherent risks and aspects of leveraged Securities trading. Seek professional advice or learn Transaction specifics before trading.

m. Weekend Trading and Offsetting

Trades automatically close at week's end. Offset Contracts carried over weekends may be allowed based on market liquidity conditions.

n. Mobile Trading Risks

Using mobile trading tech poses inherent risks like Order duplication and latency due to mobile connectivity issues. Mobile platform prices are indicative and might not reflect executed prices.

83. Further Assurances, Representations, and Covenants

In addition to the aforementioned, you further assure, represent, and agree that: (a) you act as the sole beneficial owner; (b) leveraged Financial Instruments trading suits you; (c) you're willing and financially able to bear total losses from Transactions and/or Contracts.

83.2 Compliance and Lawful Funds Usage

You covenant to maintain necessary authority, notify of Defaults, comply with laws, not create false impressions, and provide requested information.

If affiliated with a financial firm controlling employee transactions, inform us. We might request acknowledgment from your firm's Compliance Department regarding accounts/transactions.

84.2 Information Disclosure

Accepting these terms authorizes us to disclose your information as required by law or regulatory authorities, without prior notice.

This information sharing aids Account Opening Applications and enables adherence to regulatory requirements.

85. Regulatory Compliance

85.3 Cooperation with Regulatory Authorities

You explicitly acknowledge and consent that, upon reasonable written notice, you will cooperate with the Financial Services Commission (FSC) in Anguilla and other pertinent regulatory bodies concerning matters covered within this Agreement.

86.5 Changes in Taxation Basis

If taxation criteria change, leading to the necessity of withholding amounts for Taxes you owe, we reserve the right to deduct such payments from your account or request reimbursement.
